Haeri Yoo
Pain Patch (2008)

(b. 1970. BFA, Kyeongbook National University, Korea, 1992; MFA, Pratt Institute, New York, 1997) In her abstract expressionistic cartoon paintings and works on paper, Haeri Yoo, who is known for her ability to weave disrupted narratives of feministic and culturally attuned mayhem, brings together the formal sensibility of her native Korea, psychological tension, outsider art and gestural figuration. Organic lines, pencil scrawls, brightly colored washes and bold patches of paint simplify figures and build accumulations to function around the, at times sad, at times humorous, if always unsettling space between beauty and violence.

Roberta Smith

"...At Thomas Erben, Haeri Yoo's jumbled forms seem to operate in the colorful, cosmic gap between Amy Sillman and Dana Schutz, but there are much worse places to be...."
